Hitting the Mother Lode

Teresa Parham is the Teen Services Librarian at the Pleasanton Public Library. Her father was born in Santiago, Chile and is a retired Commander in the U.S. Navy. She has lived all over the country and overseas and eventually in California for the past 13 years.

Through dedicated research, her mother discovered that FC Ewer, Teresa's paternal 4th great grandfather, had spent some time in California during the 1850's. According to online records there was a diary in the California Historical Society's North Baker Research Library in San Francisco. Teresa's mother lives in Rhode Island and urged her to investigate on her behalf. What she found there was indeed "The Mother Lode". Now Teresa would discover for herself that her connection to California was actually in her genes.
