Delving Deeper into the Census and Beyond

Patrick's interest in Genealogy dates back over 50 years to his early days when he did not know that hobbyists around the world had already developed standard forms for Family Group Sheets, Pedigree and Ancestor charts. Over the intervening years, he has progressed from maintaining his records on columnar pads with a number 2 pencil and pink pearl eraser through a multitude of genealogy computer data bases. He currently uses The Master Genealogist.

Patrick earned his B. S. in Business Administration at Canisius College in Buffalo. He served two and a half years in military service at Fort Bliss, Texas. Patrick then completed his MBA at Temple University in Philadelphia.

Patrick retired in January 2005 from the position of Manager, Internal Control with the U. S. Postal Service's Bay Valley District following 40 years in postal managerial positions on both coasts in fields such as accounting, engineering, human resources and safety & health.

As his three children and five grandchildren live in Maryland and Ohio, he often travels to those east coast locales. His wife, Charlotte, is the first cousin of his late wife, Joan.
