DNA and Genealogical Research

Garl's talk will provide insight into DNA testing, which tests are available from each company and for what price. Garl will discuss what websites are useful in your research and how to use them, whether you test or not. His talk will be based on his research and the many DNA seminars he has attended in the last eight years, including the Jamboree which he will attend in June in Southern California.

Garl is an experienced genealogist and has been doing DNA research since 2007. He has a Bachelor's Degree in Electrical Engineering from Purdue and a Master's from the University of Southern California. Garl worked for Hughes Aircraft and then Litton Data systems, specializing in computers and large systems design. Since he retired in 1998 Garl has dedicated much of his time to family research. Besides traveling to many genealogy seminars, he has researched his roots in Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Massachusetts, England and Wales. He has identified over sixty immigrant ancestors in the 1500/1600s and has collected over 33,000 names in a well-sourced database. He has volunteered as a library docent in genealogy and has given genealogy lectures at the Thousand Oaks Senior Center in Southern California before he moved to Pleasanton in 2012. His wife is also an avid genealogist and DAR member. Since their arrival here he has lectured on Quakers and has been a docent at the Pleasanton Library.
