Immigration Ports of Entry

About 47 million people immigrated to the US between 1607 to 1990 and about 70% entered through the Port of New York. However, you need to consider a broader search in all ports, such as Boston, New Orleans, Baltimore, Philadelphia, and Providence. Also, an entry through Canada and Mexico should be researched.. We will review the websites and resources to locate clues to these ports: State Censuses, Voter Registrations, WWI Draft Registrations and Passport Applications can provide immigration details. .Did you try a search by who your ancestor was meeting in the US? Have you used PERSI to learn perhaps why a port was chosen? Have you ordered a Registry file from the USCIS? And, did your ancestor enter the US several times as a "Bird of Passage"?
